

I am a flight attendant and the thought of people chatting on their cell phones in flight horrifies me! Can you imagine sitting next to someone or perhaps many who are talking on their cell phones? My experience with on ground cell phone use on board the aircraft has in itself been irritating. Most people yell rather than talk into their phones. I personally do not want to hear their conversations and find it to be rude. Talk about air rage! In an already stressful and confining environment the noise and chaos created by cell phone usage in flight would only add to the discomfort of all on board. I believe allowing cell phone usage in flight would not only be annoying but unsafe.
